

CFI Training

Background:

Teaching someone to fly is a very rewarding experience. Your student's will look up to you and appreciate their training as they earn their pilot certificates. You will be teaching critical "judgment skills" necessary for them to enjoy many years of safe flying. As a CFI, you will make a significant contribution to flight safety and by extension to everyone flying in the National Airspace System.

Training to be a Certified Flight Instructor

The flight instructor is the cornerstone of aviation safety. Students consider their flight instructor to be a paragon of flying proficiency whose flying habits they, consciously or unconsciously, attempt to imitate. A good flight instructor will use a syllabus and insist on correct techniques and procedures from the beginning of training so that the student will develop proper habit patterns. The syllabus should embody the "building block" method of instruction, in which the student progresses from the known to the unknown. The course of instruction should be laid out so that each new maneuver embodies the principles involved in the performance of those previously undertaken. Consequently, through each new subject introduced, the student not only learns a new principle or technique, but broadens his/her application of those previously learned and has his/her deficiencies in the previous maneuvers.

DVI Aviation's Flight Instructor training will provide mentorship and guidance to become the very best instructor. The training includes airmanship skills, pilot judgment and decision making, and good operating practices.

www.DVIAviation.com